Ready today for tomorrow

JCU's Master of International Tourism and Hospitality Management (MITHM) is supported by high-profile industry partners who stand ready to provide you with work-integrated learning opportunities and are eager to hire JCU graduates.

Our 20 key partners offer a wide range of internship opportunities that will equip you for the career niche of your choice, whether that's at policy, governance, management or operational level in a government department, hotel, resort, tour operation, convention centre or other service organisations.

As part of the planning process for this degree, the university ran several workshops with tourism and hospitality partners, identifying the current needs of the industry. Their input informed the development and design of the program. The content is continuously updated in order to respond to the changing business environment and emerging challenges.

It's yet another way JCU ensures its graduates are job-ready.

As a MITHM student, you will learn from expert lecturers who are leaders in their fields, and focus on sustainability, innovation, resilience to overcome adversity, and effective leadership. You will also have the opportunity to liaise directly with industry to identify issues to be investigated for real-world research projects, providing data and analysis that will assist in future planning as well as growing your professional network.

Tourism and hospitality leaders also form part of our curriculum as mentors, guest speakers and career coaches. We work closely with industry to provide opportunities for you to develop transferrable skills that employers are seeking, such as communication, teamwork, leadership and problem-solving.

“The best thing about the course is the ability to critically study the key structures, opportunities, and challenges within the tourism industry and develop strategies to positively influence the sector. Studying the MITHM will enable me to achieve senior management or executive roles in Government or in the private sector. This course is great for students with experience and management skills in the tourism or hospitality sectors, as it will encourage them to engage with specific issues and opportunities within the industry and set their careers up for a senior or executive role in the future.”
